

Money Laundering, Terrorism and Proliferation Financing Risk and Control Module for Financial Planners and Investment Advisers

Financial planners and investment advisers are attractive to organised criminal networks because they act as trusted intermediaries managing client wealth, investment portfolios and asset transfers, often with discretion over complex financial products, offshore structures, or high-value investments.

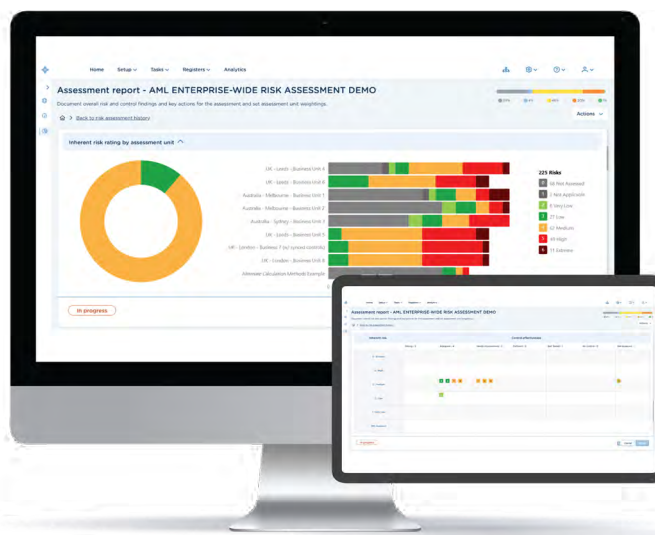

This advisory role can be exploited to disguise the origins of illicit funds or facilitate the movement of assets under the guise of legitimate financial planning. To counter these threats, it is essential that financial planners and investment advisers maintain a robust, enterprise-wide money laundering, terrorism and proliferation financing risk assessment framework.

By systematically assessing their exposure to financial crime risks and evaluating the design and operational effectiveness of their mitigating controls in a manner proportionate to their size, structure and complexity, they can strengthen compliance, protect client trust and uphold the integrity and professionalism of the financial advice industry.
